NELLA WEBB CAPTIVATED LONDON, REPEATS TRICK ON HONOLULANS

Nella Webb, the American girl who captivated London, "registered big" at the Union theater last night. She had been heralded as a top-notch act in the London music hall stages. Star performers and vaudeville headliners have been taken with a grain of salt and the theater manager apparently has decided to end not a few "documents" to the initial performance, learning from them how the act goes over and to come in if the water is good. Nella Webb, with little difficulty, can convince the most hardened Missourian the act is worth the money. She has been compared to Alice Lloyd, and truly by the London critics, favorably compared, and the London critics might be attracted to her "home judges."

The experience of this charming little vaudeville act is said to have sometimes been a bit of a trial, but she has at last night's performance to the delight of an audience that endeavored to make up in appreciation what it lacked in size. Bounding on the BIG MARIONETTE PRODUCTION TO BE SEEN AT THE POPULAR THEATER

Manager Fredhoff of the Popular theater yesterday closed a contract for a week's engagement of Deane's Marionettes at the Popular theater.
This is a clever and an elaborate marionette act that in the past year has been one of the big vaudeville successes of Australia. Mr. and Mrs. Deane, who have originated the act and who personally operate every one of the large number of wood and tin figures that go to make the picture, are now on their way to the mainland, where they have closed a long contract with one of the big American vaudeville circuits.

En route they decided to spend some time in Hawaii and have arranged to put on their act at the Popular. More than a carload of scenery is required to properly stage their production and as a result the Popular theater will be closed during Monday to allow

FRONTIER LIFE PORTRAYED IN EMPIRE FILM

Walter Oakley is a new star to be seen in this city today at the Empire theater in a gripping love story of red-blooded human beings living in the Canadian northwest. "The Wilderness Mail," an exceptional offering in two parts, gives opportunity for a talented company to present life as found north of parallel 55, untamed and un-softened by the enervating restraints of civilization.

The Canadian fastness, with its everlasting snows, offer splendid scope for motion picture photography of scenes of wild nature untraversed except by wild animals and the dog sled.
A series of stirring events is unfolded in the lives of those self-reliant and high-spirited people.

The story will please lovers of thrilling and dramatic action. Two little young giants are in love with the same girl, a daughter of an old trapper. A cruel and designing relative causes trouble. One suitor is a mounted mail carrier who is killed by an outlaw.
The other is arrested by the Canadian police, but is not released until his sweetheart has captured, unaided, the real robber and proved that he was guilty of the murder. Bessie Eytan has an important part in the drama.
An Indian drama, "Lame Dog's Treachery," is an extraordinary tale of the West. Two comedies, "It's a Shame," and "The Kidnapped," are on one reel. These pictures insure 20 minutes of hilarity. G. M. Anderson is featured in "Broncho Billy's Punishment."

DAVID HIGGINS IN RACE TRACK PLAY OF FILMS

David Higgins, actor, will appear before a Honolulu audience at Ye Liberty theater tonight, his initial appearance in this city. Incidentally Higgins will appear in the role of the Braxton, in "This Last Dollar," the greatest play of the race track and love.

Joe Braxton, first a little scow of the shuns, goes south learns to handle horses, becomes a noted jockey, then drifts west and for years is a cowboy, investing his earnings in cattle, lands and finally mines, until he is a millionaire. Coming east, the self-made man determines to enjoy a life of ease and forget the hardships of his youth.
Still unmarried, he becomes the catch of the social season and is eventually entrapped into an engagement with Viola Grayson, a young beauty whose mercenary mother urges her into the affair with Braxton, who admires, but does not love the young woman. Viola herself is in love with Toni Linson, a friend of Braxton's, who is by no means the big souled, open-hearted man that Braxton is. Linson is a schemer, who has planned to ruin Braxton and enrich himself with his friend's fortune. The play deals with racing and Braxton's love for a girl, Eleanor. The great race itself, the rascally tricks of Linson, the dramatic hand to hand fight between the rival jockeys, their magnificent riding, the splendid triumph of Braxton and Eleanor over their enemies, is vividly shown in one of the greatest and most realistic race-track scenes ever portrayed before the camera. At its close, Eleanor and Braxton decide to finish life's race together, and the drama ends happily.
